13th November 2014 – Children's Day

“The best way to make children good is to make them happy”

Oscar Wilde

Children's Day is celebrated in dedication to the birth anniversary of Indian's first prime minister, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. The day is a celebration of childhood and innocence of children. Jawaharlal Nehru was really fond of kids and children lovingly called him Chacha Nehru. According to Nehru, children should be watchfully looked after as they are the strength of the nation and a picture of India's future. To celebrate this day, an assembly was organized for class II-B. The children beautifully portrayed the life of Jawaharlal Nehru and his love for children. There were also beautiful dance performances by the students. The academic supervisor of the school, Mrs. Sumana Dutta praised the students for presenting such a beautiful and colourful assembly on children's day and wished all the students a very 'Happy Children's Day'. 18th November 2014 – Means of Communication

“Communication is one of the most empowering life skills available to us”

Communication is exchanging of information by speaking, writing or using some other medium. There are different ways through which we can say something or share our feelings. To explain about the different ways through which we can communicate, an assembly was organized by the students of class II C on the means of communication. The students explained how the telephone, letters, mobile phones, newspapers, radio, television and computers help us to communicate with other people. They also explained how without speaking we can communicate through our facial expressions and body movements. The Head of the School, Mrs. Novita chopra appreciated the students for presenting an informative assembly. She also talked about the different means of communication that we use nowadays. During the assembly certificates were also given to the winners of the quiz : Famous personalities from Class I.
